Mayor's Message

Generations of planners, craftsmen and laborers worked hundreds of years to produce each of the spectacular cathedrals in Europe. Undoubtedly, those who envisioned the grand edifices never saw the completed splendor nor even witnessed rudiment forms rise toward the heavens. Nevertheless, European visionaries spent lifetimes creating something grand for future generations because they felt compelled to build for their unborn kinsmen.

Recently I learned from a nationally recognized strategic planner that the wisest municipal leaders are "cathedral visionaries." That is, they plan for many generations to come without any expectation that they will see the results. I concur with the cathedral planners. I believe that as we preserve the past, and protect the present, we must project a vision much farther ahead in time than our current planning embraces.

The cathedrals of Europe boldly state the spiritual underpinnings of that continent and express a communal commitment to those values, but what message are we sending to our descendents? We are not building cathedrals, nor should we, but we can do much more. We can preserve the forests, protect the wetlands and safeguard emergent tracts from careless development. In the end, a healthy and robust environment is far more valuable than any man-made structure. Let our Goose Creek forests reach to the heavens and our wetlands sate and nurture our earth as long as the Cathedrals of Europe inspire... and longer than they stand.
